Specialty Own Occ Designed for Physicians

With the Own Occupation Rider, if you are totally disabled but choose to work in another job — even just a different specialty — you may still qualify for the full monthly benefit.

The Standard will provide the policy's full basic monthly benefit if you meet the policy's definition of being totally disabled which includes being unable to perform the substantial and material duties of your regular occupation. Regular occupation is defined as the occupation in which you're regularly engaged at the time your disability begins. This includes your specialty if you've limited your occupation to a specialty recognized by the American Board of Medical Specialties or American Osteopathic Association Bureau of Osteopathic Specialists. If you have earnings from another occupation or specialty while totally disabled and unable to perform your regular occupation, the duties performed in that other occupation or specialty must be different from those you are unable to perform in your regular occupation.
